

{...}

I used to say that the only real sciences were physics and anthropology; that everything arranged itself on the globe defined by these two poles.